

ENVIRONMENTAL COMPLIANCE AWARENESS COURSE

Azimuth Nautical Solutions provides a 1-day Environmental Compliance Awareness course, which is relevant for those who need to understand the requirements, responsibilities and implications of non-compliance in relation to protection of the marine environment.

The course is aimed at company managers, senior ships' officers and masters, Designated Persons Ashore (DPAs), superintendents, auditors, regulators and all those who inspect ships. The course can be delivered at your premises, onboard or at any other suitable location worldwide.

The course covers the following key topic areas:

- Managing Compliance (e.g. management responsibility, training, control devices, audits etc.)
- Review of the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships (MARPOL)
- Review of the International Convention for the Control and Management of Ships' Ballast Water and Sediments
- Review of Anti-Fouling Systems and Ship Recycling
- Detection, Enforcement & Prosecution

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- Provide a framework for the review of company compliance programmes adopted in accordance with regulatory requirements of IMO, the ISM Code and ISO 14001 Environmental Management Systems
- Protect the environment, yourselves and your employer
- Reduce risk (cost, pollution, deficiencies/non-conformities, detentions, reputation, fines, jail etc.)
- Understand and manage MARPOL requirements
- Understand and manage Ballast Water Management (BWM) requirements
- Be aware of current Port State Control and industry issues
